Dwyer Not Pardoned

Governor and Council
Unanimously Against Freeing
South Paris Murderer

Despite the remoteness of the crime from Rockland much interest was manifested here in Knox County over the Paul Dwyer pardon case, and judging from street comment everybody was prepared for the decision of Gov. Sewall and the Executive Council against decreasing executive clemency. The verdict was unanimously in opposition. Dwyer is serving a life sentence for the murder of his fellow townsman, Dr. James G. Littlefield in South Paris.

Just before Dwyer's request was taken under consideration they were advised by former Attorney General Clyde R. Chapman of Belfast that former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll of Oxford County, who also is serving life for the same murder, planned to request a pardon "at a later date."

Chapman was Carroll's chief counsel when the latter stood trial in 1938 for the elderly physician's slaying. Dwyer, in prison at that time, was the principal witness to testify against Carroll.

No one has ever been brought to trial for the killing of Mrs. Littlefield who was murdered with her husband.

Attorney General Frank I. Cowan, one of several officials who opposed Dwyer's petition, told the Governor and Council that he was prepared to present evidence to convict this young man (Dwyer) of murdering Mrs. Littlefield in New Gloucester if I am ever in a position to do so.

Mrs. Jessie Dwyer, a Hebron registered nurse and mother of Dwyer; E. Walker Abbott of South Paris, counsel for the youth, and the Rev. James H. Burns of Great Barrington, Mass., spiritual adviser of the Dwyer family, were the only persons to plead for Dwyer's freedom.

"From the fatal night of October 13, 1937, until the second day of December, 1937, when Paul Dwyer voluntarily changed his plea of not guilty to guilty," Abbott told the group, "he was under the fear and violence, threat and coercion, not only to himself but to his mother, which was imposed upon him by Francis M. Carroll. Whatever implication or complicity Paul Dwyer had in the killing of James G. Littlefield, did not result from his voluntary willingness to participate in the crime for which Francis M. Carroll was later indicted, tried and found guilty."

In the Carroll trial the State claimed that he killed Dr. Littlefield after the latter had threatened to expose alleged improprieties existing between Carroll and his daughter, Barbara, Abbott said. Carroll's desire to obtain letters written by Barbara to Dwyer, indicating this relationship, led up to the tragedy.

SURPLUS SARDINES
Prospects look good for purchase of Maine-packed sardines by the Surplus Commodities Corporation, Representative Oliver of Maine said Tuesday after conferring with the corporation officials. Surveys have been made in Maine and conferences held with Maine packers, by representatives of the corporation, who are buying for the Red Cross, and under the Lend-Lease Bill, as well as for relief. In the past the corporation has bought only for relief; now the two latter categories have been added. Drawbacks is that the corporation wants 9¢ cance cans, which means larger fish and changing machinery for the larger cans.

Hanson's Caution

Advises Service Boards
Not To Name Men More
Useful In Civil Occupations

Co-operation of all local Selective Service boards in Maine to make certain that no man who is more useful for national defense in his civilian occupation is called for military training was urged today by General James W. Hanson, State Director of Selective Service.

Stressing the need for this careful selection, Director Hanson called attention to the recent announcement by National Headquarters, Selective Service System, that the Office of Production Management and other national defense agencies report growing shortages not only of skilled mechanics but also in vital professions. He cautioned local boards against calling men needed in factory or field and concerning the necessity of maintaining an adequate reservoir of professional and technical specialists by permitting promising students to complete professional training.

"While the recruitment of a large peacetime Army is essential to national defense," Director Hanson said, "it is equally important that there is no interference with the production of defense supplies and material. We must arm, feed and clothe the military forces of democracy and we must also maintain the morale of the civilian population by protecting public health and general welfare. To do so, we must make careful and intelligent investigation of every registrant to be sure in each case that a call to military training will not interfere with equally important civilian work for national defense."

Selective Service Regulations with respect to occupational deferments, the Director declared, have the purpose of guiding local boards to three major results: (1) Prevention of avoidable shortages of necessary workers in the nation's program for defense production; (2) Protection of the national industrial training program by deferment of individuals when there is evidence that they are "in training or preparation" for an occupation or employment necessary to the maintenance of "national health, safety, or interest," and (3) Anticipation of possible exhaustion of pools of highly skilled workers not now employed in defense activities but probably necessary in the near future for expansion of defense production, when such men "but for a seasonal or temporary interruption would be engaged in such defense activity."

Intelligent deferment of registrants must also include students in certain specialized professional and technical fields, Director Hanson declared. He pointed out that recent studies made by the Office of Production Management have shown the supply of manpower is either "dangerously low" or there are indications of shortages in the near future in 17 professional and technical fields.

The eight in which the more critical situation exists are: Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Chemical Engineering, Mining and Metallurgical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Chemistry, Medicine and Dentistry. The other nine are: Agricultural Engineering, Sanitary Engineering, Pharmacy, Physics, Biology and Bacteriology, and four branches of Geology (Geophysics, Meteorology, Hydrology, and Cartography).

Students in these fields should be deferred, the Director said, "so long as they continue to be necessary men in preparation or training for activities necessary to national interest." Such deferments, he emphasized, must be made individually under the "necessary man" provisions of Selective Service Regulations and should include students who have been deferred until next July 1 as well as those still to be classified.

Omitting those needs for occupational deferments to safeguard national defense production, the Director also stressed the fundamental fact that the Selective Training and Service Act absolutely prohibits any class or group deferment. He said:

"The local board has full authority and responsibility, subject to appeal, for deciding whether or not a registrant is a necessary man and whether he should be selected or deferred. It must consider all the evidence submitted in connection with each individual case and must decide each case on its particular merits."

[EDITORIAL]

CONFUSED SCHEDULES

The National Association of Broadcasters is urging daylight saving for the whole nation on the ground that the difference in time disrupts the broadcasting schedules and curtails the effectiveness of the radio in keeping the public informed. It was this radio confusion which brought many supporters over to the side of daylight saving.

NAVAL BASE A PROSPECT

Washington advises tell us that the recently published story to the effect that Rockland and Bar Harbor had been designated as Section Bases was not authentic. It is a fact that both are being considered and those who would like to have a fleet of small craft base here should not lose hope.

NO NEW WAR SONGS

At last we have found out why no new war songs have been written since the present struggle began. Vocal music, it seems, is drowned out by the clatter of the mechanized armies. Soldiers still sing, of course, on short marches and in camp—and at least on one occasion the Amazons marched into battle in North Africa singing "We're Off To See the Wizard," from the "Wizard of Oz." The British soldiers are singing "Tipperary," "The Beer Barrel Polka," and a parody on Walt Disney's "Heigh-Ho! Heigh-Ho!" changing "Off To Work We Go" to "Off To War We Go." The people at home sing "There'll Always Be An England." Across the Channel, the theme song of the German radio at times is the threat of invasion—"We're Sailing On England."

COMMISSIONED AHEAD OF TIME

Sometimes there are bright spots in the National Defense situation, and we find one of them in the commissioning of the new battleship Washington completed 17 months ahead of schedule, and destined to take its place in the U. S. Naval Fleet the first of July. The nine 16-inch guns and other heavy armament are already mounted. The Washington is a 35,000 ton craft—larger than any now in commission—and costing $70,000,000. This is a tremendous sum for one war vessel, and it is hoped that it will be able to justify the naval constructors' plans if it is ever called upon to bear the brunt of dive bombers and other hostile attacks. It means a revival of the battleship era which was so unwisely interrupted when the United States voluntarily "junked" many of its expensive ships. It perhaps did not seem unwise at the time—rather a step in the direction of lasting peace—but in the light of present developments when the heel of the marauder is so ruthlessly crushing the democracies, the futility of it is only too plainly seen.

VOTED RIGHT, WE THINK

The United States Senate was overwhelmingly in favor of the requisition of foreign ships interned in our ports, and we are glad to note that both Maine Senators, Wallace H. White, Jr., and Ralph O. Brewster were on the majority side. Not, however, until they had supported Senator Vandenberg's amendment which would forbid transferring to another belligerent. In this instance the vote was much closer, 43 to 38. We are glad, also, to note that Representative Margaret Chase Smith was a full supporter of the move to requisition the ships. She did not do this blindly, however; her vote was based upon advice from informed sources.

A FINE ORGANIZATION

Sole survivor of the many church leagues which have been formed in this city during the past 40 years is the Baptist Men's League, which on Thursday night completed its 34th season, without ever having missed a meeting. While bearing a denomination title this organization is non-sectarian—a cross section group of the whole city without regard to church, but always ready to throw its weight on the side of any movement which argued for the city's welfare. Its programs have always been of an educational and informative nature, varied now and then by entertainment of a lighter character, but with a high standard always being maintained. Congratulations to President Brunberg upon the success of his two administrations, and best wishes to Elmer B. Crockett, his successor in the chair.

MORNING'S NEWS IN A NUTSHELL

The British have taken the offensive on both sides of the Suez Canal, with aerial attacks on Syrian airdromes. The Senate voted yesterday to grant the Reconstruction Finance Corporation sweeping new powers to expedite the defense program, backed by an additional $1,500,000,000 in borrowing power. Millinocket forest fires yesterday destroyed 100 camps. President Roosevelt hints that the Navy may be used to protect American shipping in the Red Sea. Quadruplet girls born in Chicago yesterday died this morning.

Memorial Day

All patriotic organizations are invited to participate in the parade on Memorial Day and to attend the Memorial exercises held at Grand Army hall. All bodies with their Auxiliaries report at Grand Army hall at 10 a. m. sharp. Miss Heidt has been a member of the Metropolitan Opera for two seasons and has a glorious voice. She will make her second appearance on the Ford hour in July. ## CLOSED SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The Baptist Men's League Chooses
Elmer B. Crockett As the New Leader
—Mr. Day's Farewell

As one feature of what Rev. William J. Day declared to be his farewell address before the Baptist Men's League, the speaker Thursday night read the above poem. He had been presented to the assembly by the splendid cooperation he had received from the members and for the fine entertainments which the two seasons had produced. The report of the nominating

THE FOUNDER'S FAREWELL

I am sitting in my study,
As I'm thinking of the past;
And many things come into mind,
Clothed in a varied cast.
Some are dark, and some are bright,
And some are good and bad;
While others flashing into thought,
Are full of all that's sad.
Some of these things brought forth a laugh,
While others called out a sigh;
A bit of pride was felt as well,
As things went scurrying by.
Among the things my mind recalled,
As passing in review,
Was a Men's League at Rockland, Maine,
The best I ever knew.

This League had members fifty-four,
When it began its course;
To which were added many more,
Who came from every source.
There were clergymen and lawyers, too,
And business men as well;
There were doctors, painters, carpenters,
With news-men, strange to tell.
There were editors and seamen,
Farmers, presidents and more—
Professors, clerks and bookkeepers,
To swell the ranks galore.

For four and thirty years you see,
This League went on its way;
Until it reached this "Ladies' Night,"
In the Spring-time month of May.

It is in this month the founder
Is expected to be here,
As this closes the League's meetings,
Till the Fall-time of the year.

So here I am, as you can see,
And with me I did bring,
The shortcake, which as usual,
Its praises all will sing.

The pleasure of my visits here,
Prolonged through gracious years;
Is far beyond my speech to tell,
As my closing address nears.

For now the time has come, I feel,
To say a last farewell
To League and Ladies' Night in Maine,
Where all has been so well.

I think it best to stop right here,
As no doubt you would do;
If you had reached the ripe old age,
Of fourscore years and two.

And so, to all I say goodbye,
With wishes for the best;
May "League" and "Ladies' Night" go on,
Increasing in their zest.

On memory's page I'll hold you dear,
And oft recall the night,
When this "Men's League" of Rockland, Maine,
Was started off just right.

Time has made inroads in the ranks,
As time does everywhere;
Some have passed on beyond our ken,
With us no more to share.

Soon we shall all have lived our life,
And ceased our service here;
God grant that we may find it then,
In that higher, holier sphere.

In that divine Eternal League,
Where Christ is Lord of all,
May we complete in Him be found,
When He for us shall call.

Written by Rev. W. J. Day of Winthrop, Mass., for delivery in connection with his farewell address to the Baptist Men's League of Rockland, Me., May 15, 1941.

tist Men's League, founded by the former pastor of the First Baptist Church was one of the outstanding monuments which marked his 10 years' pastorate in Rockland. Force of circumstances had compelled Mr. Day to reach his decision, which, it goes without saying, was equally unpleasant for him. It was the annual meeting of the League, merged into a ladies' night, and bringing out an attendance which necessitated the setting of an extra table. The supper was of extra fine quality, concluding with a most liberal helping of strawberry shortcake. The business meeting was pre-

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

W. Raymond Stewart of Union street deposited on my desk yesterday a bottle which contained an especially large and vicious looking creature of the beetle family. The body was nearly two inches long, and it was conveyed by a generous assortment of long legs. The sharp eyes bore a wicked gleam. Unable to furnish a pedigree I suggested that Mr. Stewart liberate the insect and step on it, which he did.

Atrocious pronunciation, sometimes heard from careless radio broadcasters, is forgiven in view of the great service rendered. But it was nearly the limit last night when one of them referred to our Chief Executive as Governor Seal-wall.

Which is going to be rather fortunate for Old England.

have such a valuable member sent back to private life.

The Baptist Men's League was formed in 1907 and 17 of the charter members are still living. Those present Thursday night were called upon to rise, and were given an ovation.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hans Heistad of Rockport, whose delightfully rendered duets proved a fitting prelude to a memorable meeting.

The gathering was a fine tribute to Rev. Mr. Day, whose address of striking merit revealed the ardor and spirit which have characterized his sermons and other addresses down through the years. Mr. Day said in part:

The subject of Mr. Day's address was "Pen Pictures of the Past and Present." He dealt with the things which had taken place in human life during the past 50 or 75 years, which have transformed the world, and added so much to humanity's pleasure and profit.

The realm of travel was first considered, both on sea and land. We cross the Atlantic now in a few days, where it used to take many weeks; and we can do it amid all the luxuries and comforts of a first class hotel. The automobile has revolutionized travel on land. As we move at railroad speed over concrete roads.

The achievements in aviation are wonderful. Business and pleasure are greatly benefited. Continents and seas are crossed with great speed, and the ends of the earth are brought closer together as we emulate the birds in flight. The dream of "Round the World in 80 days" is now beaten to a frazzle for we can do it in almost as many hours.

In the realm of heat and lights, marvels have been wrought. The wood-stove has given way to heating of homes by furnaces fed with coal and oil, and the farmer's house is as comfortable day and night now as that of the city dweller.

We have gone a long distance in lighting. The tallow candle has given way to kerosene lamp, and this to gas and on to electricity. What would our fathers say if they could look upon the electric light displays of today? And think of what we should lose in the home and elsewhere if electricity should be taken from us.

Go into the realm of communication. The telegraph, the first

PRAYER FOR SPRING

When Earth awakes to clothe herself in green,
May I awake from Winter's apathy,
And feel a new awareness of the pulse
Of life which holds my own sure destiny.
Oh, may I see the pattern and the plan
The worth of all that's lovely and That's good.
And help me be responsive to the call
Of all who need my love and hardi-hood.
I want to understand and to receive,
To savor and absorb each happening,
Like Earth, I want to wake, begin again.
O Father, help me be akin to Spring.

"The Sly Nine"

Elmer Tells Some Amusing Anecdotes Concerning a St. George Secret Society

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— A few years ago there were not many secret societies in this village—only two as I remember, the Masons and the Iron Clads. Some of us young chaps, not being 21, conceived the idea that we ought to have a secret society of our own, so nine of us got together and formed one which was named "The Sly Nine." I think Al Rawley named it.

We weren't anyways "sly," only Al and Freely Smalley thought it would make people curious and I guess it did.

We leased a room in the upper story of the A. D. Davis block which consisted of two large rooms. One of these was used by Mr. Davis as a casket room as he was the undertaker. His room was off to one side from the room we occupied which was reached through an alleyway.

The charter members were Frank Rawley, Albert Rawley, Elmer Allen, Fred Sheerer, Freely Smalley, Frank (Tink) Brown, Walter Morton, James Romkey and Thomas Wheeler. We met once a week and had a regular program at every meeting. We initiated a few candidates but didn't want many.

One night after we were through with initiation Walter Morton who was the installing officer that evening and left handed, called the boys to order, using a carpenter's mallet for a gavel. In some manner he missed the stand when he brought the gavel down and it went through a window and down through the skylight window in Mrs. Olive Pierson's house.

It made a terrible crash. We put the lights out immediately so people couldn't tell where it came from and then we argued whether we should go and get the mallet and pay damages or say nothing about it. The latter move was decided upon by a unanimous vote and we crept down stairs in the dark and went home.

We had a bell at the head of the stairs attached to a string which led down the door and which we would pull on if we were late. Some of the boys who were kind of sore at us because we would not take them into our order used to pull this string. It bothered us considerably, so one night Al Rawley and I concluded that we would put a stop to this annoyance.

We stationed ourselves inside the lower entrance and did not have long to wait. When they came we opened the door quickly and captured two and took them up stairs to decide what to do with them. We found we had "Tidy" and Charlie. We took them into the room that contained the caskets and put each one of them into one, shut the top down and kept them there until they promised never to ring our doorbell again. They never troubled afterward and we had peace and quietness for quite a while.

Springtime came and some of the boys had to go away and we had one candidate ready to receive the third degree. We had him blindfolded, ready for the last degree, when one of the officers drew an icicle down across his face. "Stop. Stop boys," cried the candidate, "I'm all done. You can't abuse me like that. I won't finish." So that was the last meeting for a long time of "The Sly Nine."

WASHINGTON—AND YOU

By Margaret Chase Smith

Washington, May 14—Trial of the selective service system over the last eight or nine months has revealed defects which Congress should and probably will remedy. I voted for the Act setting up the system because I believe it is the democratic way to defend this country. I did not expect it to be a perfect system, and shall support amendments shown by experience to be necessary. One very vital thing is to make sure of uniformity of application. Complaints are coming in to both Senate and House of the difference in the way local draft boards administer the Act. These differences cause a sense of injustice which is most unfortunate in draft which above all things should be absolutely fair. Some feel that the present set-up should be tried out for at least a year.

Some time ago I introduced an amendment which would defer the draft of any married men living with their wives. I do not think that homes should be broken up except in actual war emergency, and I do not believe Congress intended that they should. I have asked for a hearing on my amendment but have been informed by the Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee that the War Department is opposed to it. It may go into the general group of changes in the Act without separate consideration.

There is a growing support in the Congress for lowering the draft age. Now it ranges from 21 to 35. The army finds that the older men do not adapt as easily and the army prefers none over 25.

There is also growing support for a year of military training for all young men before they marry or establish themselves in a career. This would prevent the injustice of any selective service system in which, by lot, one is taken and another is left. This training of young men exclusively could not be undertaken until we had by the present system trained a reservoir of men of different ages, but I think the time has come when we must consider the problem of training all young men.

The gravity of the war situation is felt by all members. This was evident in the consideration of the bill which would permit the United States to take over the military equipment of the United States.

Mitchell of Marr's Hill, Special music by the vested choir, organist Mrs. Leola Smith. Junior League meets at 4 Mrs. Ivan Calderwood, leader. Christian Endeavor meets at 6 Mrs. Vaughn Johnson leader. Evening service of praise and song will be at 7.

States Government to requisition all foreign ships interned in our ports. I voted for this proposal because I believe that we must defend this country and that such defense should be carried out first through aid to Britain to keep the war as far away from our shores as possible.

We must face realities now. The Bill did not direct that the ships be turned over to Britain, or any other belligerent, but that is clearly the purpose. I voted against amendments which would have weakened effect of the E.I. These amendments proposed that ships could only be bought or chartered but not requisitioned; and that once acquired they could not be transferred to a belligerent or any other country. In my opinion, these amendments would have destroyed the purpose of the Bill. To help Britain we must give her ships according to the policy already established by the Lease-Lend Act. We will pay full price for these foreign ships. They will help fill the gap between now and the time when our own new merchant ships come off the ways either in carrying supplies to the fighting democracies or in our own world trade.

The closeness of our relationship to Canada was plain in the interview which the Maine Congressional delegation had at the Canadian Legation with the Minister, Leighton McCarthy. John D. Erickson went with us. He is director of European Affairs of our State Department and a member of the Joint Canadian-United States Defense Commission. He has been assigned by the State Department to serve with the Maine delegation in discussing ways of easing the border and exchange restrictions which are causing ill-feeling. Mr. McCarthy was very sympathetic with the hardships caused by Canada's restriction on money spent in this country by Canadians for pleasure but said that the war is taking every cent Canada can scrape up. It is a good thing that machinery has been set up for the Maine delegation to work closely with the Legation and the State Department. I shall take advantage of it when business of my District requires consultation.

The war will not tighten regulations governing crossing into Canada this summer. I am informed. United States citizens do not need passports or other documents to leave or come back into this country, but it is well to take identifying documents. Aliens lawfully in the United States must have a re-

New York Art Students Learn About Color

Young Decorators at New York's famous Pratt Institute study color schemes in giant collection of color photos which will be lent to local residents.

Interior decoration students at Pratt Institute, best-known of all New York Art Schools, now are studying home color schemes from a huge portfolio of color photos, duplicates of which are now available at the Glover Co. Store. The color-photo collection, known as the Paint and Color Style Guide, shows many of America's most beautiful rooms and homes in actual colors, and will be lent to local residents, the local paint man says.

Many rules and hints on interior decoration can be learned by a study of the color photos, according to the decorating experts of Sherwin-Williams Company, who compiled the portfolio. For example, the photos show that rooms with a northern exposure can be painted with warmer colors than other exposures, that grayed wall entry permit, which costs $3, in the Portland Immigration Office if they expect to come back into the United States.

It was decided at a meeting of Townsend Members of the House that if the Ways and Means Committee does not assure us of a hearing on our bill this year, we will start a petition to discharge the Committee and bring the Bill to the Floor. It may be that the Administration will propose an expansion of the present old age pension system and the cost of this may be tied in with general taxation legislation now being considered by the Ways and Means Committee. I found the Cleveland Townsend people much interested in the general subject of taxation for defense which, they realize, may seriously affect any attempt to enact an old age pension measure which would increase expenditures.

Among my luncheon guests at the Capitol this week were Mrs. Guy P. Gannett, of Portland, Vice President Eastern Division of the National Federation of Music Clubs, who is seeking some way of service by her organization to the men of the Army and Navy; Miss Mary Barber, President of the American Dietetics Association, who is "loaned" to the War Department to plan soldiers' menus; and the Maine delegation to the biennial General Council of the National League of Women Voters. Mrs. Horatio C. Cowan, of Rockland, First Vice President, and Mrs. Paul A. Morin, of Saco, Legislative Chairman. Also, attending meeting 30 Kingfield High students and their Principal, Abbott Clark. There's inspiration, good fun and a whole new slant on menu-planning when you view the heaped-up fruit and vegetable stands. Baby carrots you can scrub and cook whole or eat raw after crisping them in ice water to which you've added onion or garlic salt. Or combine the carrots cooked and sliced with little onions, new peas or cooked asparagus tips, melted butter or light cream as sauce.

Cabbage heads now are pale jade green, crisp and tender and the shredded cabbage needs not more than 10 minutes steaming in milk perhaps or very little water, then cream and seasonings and perhaps new potatoes cooked in their earthy jackets. Try boiled tongue or brisket with horseradish sauce and beet or dandelion or spinach greens.

Fiddle head greens are coming into market for their short season. They've organized a co-operative in Maine to market the tender, curled fiddle heads that taste like asparagus and are really delicious. You might ask your grocer if he has them.

The Dutch always use nutmeg as a vegetable seasoning. You might like it on asparagus kale or cauliflower and again you might not. We like the delicately seasoned chicken or beef broth also with butter as dressing for almost any cooked vegetable.

A can of condensed mushroom soup thinned with three quarters of a cup of rich milk makes a different sauce for buttered asparagus on toast. Try a scallop of cooked rice and sliced onions, equal parts with curry sauce or cream sauce and a topping of crumbs and grated cheese some night when a platter of asparagus on toast is the big note of the dinner. Crisp curls of bacon can garnish the asparagus and a strawberry shortcake could top off a fine May dinner.

String Beans in Horseradish Sauce—Four tablespoons Land O' Lakes Butter, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 4 tablespoons Ceresota flour, 1/2 teaspoon Sterling salt, 2 tablespoons bottled horseradish, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups milk, 2 No. 2 cans (5 cups) string beans.

Melt the butter, add onion and cook until tender. Add flour salt, horseradish and pepper, and stir until smooth. Add the cold milk, place over boiling water, and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Then add string beans; heat well, and serve. Serves six. To serve two or three, make half this recipe.

Golden Wedding

Camden Couple Quietly Observe 50-Year Mark of Married Life

Three talented and famous nieces of whom they are very fond are Edna St. Vincent Millay, renowned poet; Norma and Kathleen Millay, both talented actresses.

Since their marriage, they have resided in Camden, New Hampshire, Rockland and the past 40 years have been spent back in Camden where Mr. Millay has a well established and popular tailor shop on Main street.

Camden Theatre

The love story of a magnificent cheat will be the next feature attraction at the Strand Theatre. Bette Davis, the screen's first lady of drama, is starred, and the title of the picture is "The Great Lie." With George Brent co-starring and Edmund Goulding directing, "The Great Lie" is another stirring screen experience from these stars and the director of "The Old Maid" and "Dark Victory."

"The Great Lie" is a modern love story, and in it Bette Davis is said to surpass even her superb performance in "The Letter." It is the first role of its type that the two-time Academy Award winning star has played since she rose to stellar heights. "Maggie," the character she portrays, is a normal American girl, very much in love and willing to fight all odds to keep the man she loves. There isn't a trace of neurosis or meanness about her, and she is naturally a gay and happy person, a wealthy girl who comes to lead a simple, country life on her farm in Maryland. All the feminine skulduggery which enters the plot is carried on by Mary Astor, Bette's rival for Brent's love in the story. Miss Astor portrays a very sophisticated woman of the world, a concert pianist who also rides the top crest of a society. Brent plays an aviator and explorer, in love with Bette, but attracted to Mary during his inebriated moments. One of the most interesting points of "The Great Lie" is the way these three characters change and develop under the stress of the dramatic developments of this love triangle.

There are approximately 800 radio broadcasting stations in the United

Would Boost Salary

A Proposition Which Does Not Please a Waldoboro Taxpayer

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Well do I remember years ago when Congress doubled the salary of all the members, including the President, and members of his cabinet. Afterward, under another Administration it was all put back to its original stipend except the President's, which remained at $50,000. It is now $75,000 with current expenses added, which makes a total of about $325,000.

The above was brought to memory by suggestion of a writer in the Waldoboro Press May 8, where he suggested that the salaries of Maine legislators be raised $400, totaling $1000 for the term. His reasons seem to be the length of the last term over other terms, but even then it would be big pay over the average taxpayer's income. Besides, the present salary, coupled with the honor that goes with it, is sufficient to induce the best of our citizenry to aspire for that plum.

No doubt the one who suggested the raise is an aspirant. Well, the thought is human, but we taxpayers are also human and have a right to protest against any raise in salaries in the interest of economy. In the county we are paying three commissioners $1250 for what $100 each would be good pay for, and there are plenty who could do the work efficiently who would be glad to get that amount. The writer thinks it would be satisfactory to the taxpayers to organize an economy campaign and begin by reducing the salaries of State and national officials.

I remember back in 1901 the salary of a State legislator was $150 and there were plenty of aspirants at that price. It was afterwards raised to $300, later to $400 then up to $600. The legislators seem to have full power to charge what they please for their services, while the people must acquiesce with no voice in the matter—far from the principles of Democracy of which Americans boast. The good Lord send us a leader who really cares for the welfare and comfort of the people! That is the prayer of—A Taxpayer.

Waldoboro, May 16.

ARE WE GOING TO WAR?

"For a Considerable Time To Come the Answer Is 'No'" Says Senator Brewster

In my judgment for a considerable time to come the answer is "No." War is not likely when neither party wants to fight and that is certainly the case today. Hitler has no desire to see the United States involved because it would mean the doubling and trebling of American production almost overnight as Uncle Sam rolled up his sleeves and shook off the lethargy which is at present holding defense production down 25 to 40 percent below the desired totals. Hitler will leave America alone for the present. Patrols will not be attacked.

The two Committees on Naval Affairs and Commerce on which I have been placed have been in very frequent sessions this Winter considering the proper provision for our navy and the great merchant marine program in which we are now engaged. More recently the Special Senate Committee to Investigate our National Defense has been holding hearings to determine the progress of our preparedness.

Maine has a tremendous stake in this great program with more than $300,000,000 in defense construction allocated to Kittery, South Portland, and Bath. These allocations are a tribute to the skill and character of Maine shipbuilders and Maine craftsmen.

Everywhere one is greeted with the same question: "Are we going to be involved in war?"

No one on earth knows the answer in a world that is aflame. First, we were told there would be no war. Second, we were told it was a phony war. Now we are told by the same voices that it is a hopeless war and that Britain is engaged in a hopeless fight.

On the other side are ranged those who have steadfastly contended that war seemed inevitable and terrible but that right would ultimately triumph.

No one today defends the good intentions of Adolf Hitler. His scourge has spread across 14 prosperous nations in Europe—most of them innocent of any wrong except the tragic error of weakness in the face of his engulfing might.

Colonel Lindbergh has well described the situation in a recent article in Collier's Magazine where he said: "One of the striking differences between France and England, during the months immediately preceding this war, lay in the fact that France was alert to her danger, but disorganized; while England was organized but only half awake. In France, internal conditions were so bad that I often wondered whether war or revolution would break upon the country first. In England, there was no danger of revolution, but the people of that nation had never adjusted themselves to the tempo of this modern era. Their minds were still attuned to the speed of sail rather than to that of aircraft. The way of life in England was ideal for times of peace, but fatal for a modern war. In Germany, on the other hand, one found a nation that had risen from the prostration of a previous defeat—a nation less tolerant, less satisfied, than its neighbors; a nation fully trained for war and nurtured on the philosophy that right is inseparable from might."

Faced with this philosophy that might makes right America by an overwhelming majority decided to modify its neutrality legislation and permit the shipment of munitions to the warring yet unprepared democracies. Incidentally, this meant the creation of production facilities in America that would be most serviceable to us in any crisis. With the fall of France America became even more aroused and embarked upon a great preparedness program that resulted in the first peace-time mobilization in our history that has now put more than a million and a half men under arms and has started the wheels of our country whirling to produce more than thirty billion dollars worth of defense materials.

Meanwhile it became evident that without further aid Britain must inevitably fall and the Congress responding to the joint voices of both great parties in the last national election and again by an overwhelming majority has enacted a seven-billion dollar program of aid to Britain and has embarked upon a gigantic program to build the ships that shall carry the goods across the seas.

Let us remember in this connection that while ships are being sunk the last two months at the rate of five million tons a year there is no reason to believe that this rate of depletion can be continued during the much longer periods of darkness that prevail in northern latitudes during the Fall and Winter months when both submarine and aerial operations are greatly handicapped. Meanwhile various reserves are being called into service and the shipping routes of the world are being reorganized to meet this challenge and the democracies are a long way from exhausting their resources.

I shall not soon forget the inspiration of William Knudsen's testimony before the Committee investigating our national defense. He pointed out that America had twice industrial capacity and resources of any other nation upon the earth. One of the committee members inquired whether any other nation was overtaking us and Mr. Knudsen replied: "What do you mean overtaking us? We have not yet begun."

A vast organization is all too slowly coming into being held back by the lethargy and moderation of Americans who have not yet awakened to the significance of what is going on in the world across the seas.

Whether or not it is possible for us to entrench ourselves against a world, certainly no one desires that the line of battle shift from the English Channel to the shores of the United States.

Our present tremendous program of preparedness and aid to Britain is not depleting our resources but is rather organizing our resources for more adequate defense. The planes that are beginning to pour overseas to Europe are but the products of assembly lines that may soon equal the production of the great automobile assembly lines in Detroit that have been the amazement of the world.

A million fewer automobiles this next year will make room for 50,000 more planes as America begins to realize something of the marvelous resources that nature has bestowed upon us with so prodigal a hand.

The administration is moving constantly to extend more effective aid to Britain in accordance with the declared policy of the Congress and the country without involving the United States in war.

No course can be guaranteed against involvement as the President has frankly said but those in authority are in a better position to estimate the probabilities with all the information they secure from every quarter of the globe. Certainly Hitler is not anxious to involve the United States in war. He is keenly conscious of the consequences 20 years ago when the productive capacities of America were finally unleashed.

Hitler knows far better than most Americans have yet realized what it would mean if America really knuckled down to fight. Instead of an annual production of ten billion dollars at which our industries were operating this last quarter we would go without delay to 30 or 40 billion dollars a year and this would spell the doom of the strained resources of middle Europe upon which Mr. Hitler must still depend.

We have at least now passed the fateful days of April which throughout the Winter we were confidently told would be the time when America would be involved in strife.

Our objectives continue to be to keep Britain in the war and to keep America out of the war and there is nothing to indicate that there is immediate danger that we may not continue to achieve these twin objectives.

Let us also realize that the collapse of Britain which would inevitably result from the withdrawal of our aid would by no means free us from danger but would mean rather America would face the world alone.

Colonel Lindbergh has made crystal clear the philosophy of a German that believes that might is right. There is nothing in this philosophy that would indicate a contentment with a conquest of merely half the world. Conquerors cannot stand still.

Hitler, who was to be content with Munich and with Czechoslovakia and with Poland has now taken practically all the nations of Europe underneath his sway.

There is to be found in the lessons of human nature or of history nothing to indicate that a Hitler dominant over Europe, Africa and Asia would not seek to engulf the riches and the ideology represented by the United States.

There is considerable discussion as to whether or not America is vulnerable. Upon this issue I shall not summon an advocate of aid to Britain who might perhaps be accused of bias but rather the most outstanding advocate of isolation to be found in the Senate of the

PORTLAND HEAD

The Sterlings entertained at dinner Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Sterling, Jr., of Portland.

The Hilt family are alone (just three) the first time for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards of Damariscotta called Sunday on Mrs. Sterling.

Arthur Harlow of South Portland was guest Tuesday evening of F. O. Hilt.

Mrs. R. T. Sterling visited Wednesday with her sister Mrs. Charles Sterling of Peaks Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Grant and family of Cape Elizabeth called Sunday on the Hilt.

Abraham Sterling of Peaks Island was overnight guest Wednesday at the home of his sister and brother-in-law the Sterlings at the Light.

F. O. Hilt was disappointed Sunday. When he arrived home he found a card bearing the names of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rawley and a little note. Mr. Rawley is postmaster at Tenants Harbor. So glad you called, and because you had to have an escort to the Light don't let it bother you; try again, better luck next time.

R. T. Sterling was dinner guest Wednesday of acquaintances in Portland.

Miss Nannie Kinney, who has been with the Hilt family all Winter returned to her home at St. George last Sunday, accompanied by Miss Charlotte Caddy also returning to St. George.

United States—a man as well-informed concerning our defenses as any man in the Congress at this time because of a lifetime devoted to the development of our naval defenses—a man who sat upon the platform with Colonel Lindbergh at his recent great meeting in the city of New York lending the prestige of his presence to the address of Colonel Lindbergh at that time—Senator

Chairman for many years of the great Naval Affairs Committee of the Senate and an authority upon our national defense.

Upon the issue of whether or not America is vulnerable to attack I ask you to listen to the considered utterance of Senator Walsh in the Senate of the United States on May 15, 1941. I quote, "From all the evidence available it appears that the United States can be defeated and conquered without military conquest of continental United States. Without a navy capable of controlling the sea areas against an enemy, an effective blockade against our foreign commerce can be established and maintained at points thousands of miles from our coasts and well beyond aircraft range. Our outlying possessions will be captured and used against us as advance bases. There will be nothing to prevent the establishment of bases, by force, if necessary, in this hemisphere, from which, as well as from aircraft carriers, repeated bombing raids can be dispatched against our highly industrialized areas. With the loss of our outlying possessions, our foreign commerce, and subject to continual raids upon our coastal areas, our ultimate defeat is inevitable. It will be only a question of time, depending on how long our national will to further resist will hold out. Without the power to carry the fight to the enemy, there can be no alternative other than subjugation to his wishes."

Let us remember that without the resources now controlled by the British Empire it would be extremely difficult if not impossible for the United States to insure control of the high seas.

Let us recognize that we face two terrible alternatives. It may well be true that ultimately Hitler will decide that he will precipitate us into war although every calculation of cunning will persuade him to defer this evil day as long as possible because he knows full well what it would mean to the morale of the people of the Reich. On the other hand let us realize that the fall of England would mean a Hitler triumphant in three continents and able easily to penetrate by peaceful means the countries to our south in ways that it would be almost impossible for us to challenge. As he moves steadily up by ideological penetration toward the Panama Canal America will more and more feel the challenge as we face the world alone.

It is my considered judgment that the best prospect of avoiding war lies in maintaining the fighting power of Great Britain and a battleline on the English Channel rather than along our New England coast. It is in that conviction that we are continuing to carry on conscious of our human limitations and yet seeking constantly that guidance that has carried America so far.

Wonder how many lightkeepers' wives listened to Kay Kyser's program on the air Wednesday night? He asked, "Do keepers of lighthouses do their own cooking?" His own answer was "I should say yes because they are light housekeepers." What about it, housewives, do we let him get away with that?

"LITTLE NAVY" Spring brings increasing activity for the little ships that serve and supply the Royal Air Force—ships that make up Britain's "little navy."

These vessels, manned and operated by the personnel of the R.A.F., are rather small for naval vessels—most of them are only 20 to 60 feet in length. But they do valiant duty.

The vessels include high-speed launches for rescuing airmen from crashed planes; armored target-boats which dart courageously over the waters to give British pilots real practice in bombing ships; and pinnaces to supply flying-boats and to lay flare paths on the water for seaplanes alighting at night.

The work done by the little ships is always dangerous, and on most of the vessels machine guns must be carried to ward off enemy plane attacks. Mammoth seas and punishing gales frequently add to the terrors of the war, for the boats must often sail many miles offshore in the unsafe waters of the North Sea or the Atlantic to pick up pilots reported down—War Cry.

LA MOINE WANTS IT

La Moine wants that new lobster-rearing station; and the local Civic club points out that the former U. S. coaling depot would be ideal. The property consists of 55 acres of land, and a large steel wharf over 300 feet long. The University of Maine biological school occupies three buildings on the east end of the property, where school is conducted six weeks in the Summer.

It costs the average driver about three cents a mile today to drive his car; in 1900 the average was 30 cents a mile.

News Of The Navy

Young Men Waiting For School To Close May Apply At This Time

The Officer-in-Charge, Navy Recruiting Service, Northern New England District, announces that potential candidates for enlistment in the United States Navy who are awaiting for schools to close before they enlist, may apply now or anytime prior to closing of schools, to file application and take the physical examination. If they are found qualified for enlistment, they will be enlisted in the Navy as soon as they leave school at the end of the school term.

Also, young men about to reach their 17th birthday who are desirous of enlisting in the Navy, may file applications and take the physical examination at least one month before their 17th birthday. If they are found qualified, they will be enlisted in the Navy on their 17th birthday.

All young men accepted for enlistment in the Navy who are between the ages of 17 and 18 years, will be enlisted for a minority term—the enlistment to expire the day before they reach their 21st birthday.

Those who apply are under no obligation whatsoever, and will avoid the rush of applicants anticipated when school closes.

Parents are invited to contact any Navy Recruiting Station for information in the interest of their sons' future.

All enlisted men have an equal chance of learning one of the many trades taught in the Navy, and are assured of a pension after 20 years honorable service.

The U. S. S. Lexington (giant air-craft carrier) with 2202 officers and men aboard, has on board at the present time what is probably the largest number of offices and enlisted personnel ever to be attached to a single man-of-war on duty at any one time.

Originally there were 13 trouser buttons on all United States Seamen's trousers; one for each of the 13 original States.

The anchors on the U. S. S. West Virginia each weigh ten tons. There are three of them aboard ship.

Strangely enough, the flagship of the Revolutionary Navy was named the U. S. S. Alfred in honor of King Alfred of England, and yet was commissioned to fight against the British Navy which was originally founded by that old-time English Monarch.
